COLUMBUS – Sporting Columbus and Zochowski Plastic & Reconstructive Surgery team up to start a training bib program. With new COVID protocols, there is more care and attention required regarding equipment such as keeping bibs clean and sanitary. Dr. Christopher Zochowski recognized the issues and reached out to Sporting Columbus regarding solutions. After discussing the requirement and protocols, thanks to additional support from Zochowski Plastic & Reconstructive Surgery, Sporting Columbus has started a training bib program where Sporting Columbus partners can have their logo added to the back of training bibs. Thanks to the initial funding from Zochowski Plastic & Reconstructive Surgery, Sporting Columbus purchased new training bibs for several coaches.

“Coaches are needing to wash bibs daily due to a limited number of bibs. This adds to the wear and tear of the equipment as well as adds another layer of responsibility on each coach” said Sporting Columbus President Jeffrey Warren. “Thanks to the creation of this new program and the initial funding from Zochowski Plastic & Reconstructive Surgery, we are able to order more equipment, provide coaches with extra bibs and make it easier for coaches to follow the new COVID protocols.”

“We recognize the importance of kids playing in these difficult times but also understand the significance of safety precautions” said Dr. Christopher Zochowski. “Anything we can do to keep kids playing in a protected and responsible manner is a win-win.”

Anyone interested in participating in Sporting Columbus’ new training bib program, please contact Jeffrey Warren.
